

PRESS RELEASE

Chandler Garvey launches new Occupier Services Department

Chandler Garvey has created a dedicated occupier services division in recognition of the fact that many occupiers negotiate property deals themselves, but few succeed in doing this well. In extreme circumstances this can have very serious consequences for the business.

Chandler Garvey Occupier Services is headed by Joanna Kearvell, who has been with the firm for 11 years. This new department will bring together all our expertise in commercial property in a new, accessible format for occupiers.

The Occupier Services department will include helping businesses to acquire new premises and deal with the pitfalls along the way. We are able to advise on lease renewals and rent reviews which can be key times for every business. Facilities management is an important part of leasing premises and we can take the hassle out of renting premises to ensure your company adhere to the latest regulations.

Our mission is to make every occupier better aware of the role that right premises, at the right cost, has on the success of the business.

Chandler Garvey Occupier Services will be holding regular workshops at the Clare Charity Centre in Saunderton, working with Buckinghamshire Business First to benefit local businesses. The first workshop is 18th April 8.30-10.30am and is free for BBF members to attend. There is a new section on our website with lots of hints and tips to help you get the most of your premises.
